SILENT PARTNER SOFTWARE

What is DMSLite?

A conversational interface to assist users in the nonprofit space better manage their donors and donations.
It can create and manage donors, post donations, generate and view reports, as well as produce receipts for donors.
In addition to these core features, the application is built in such a way that it supports easy scalability and robust extensibility for future development. Neato, right?

What are the requirements?

The system needs to be usable by all sorts of people without training or experience with similar systems. And what's something everyone can do? Have a conversation! That's why the conversational interface was adopted and why the UI looks like a message log!

What did the team learn?

- Capstone is a great work experience
- Requirements phases are extremely important and crucial to the development of any product
- Proper time management is important
